PREFACE.

THIS work was begun by Capt. Levi Crowell, of West Dennis, Mass., and his records have been used as the basis, being supplemented by those of the late Henry G. Crowell, of South Yarmouth, Mass. Invaluable assistance has been rendered by Mr. Samuel P. May, of Newton, Mass., who has made a special study of the Sears and Crowell families. Thanks are due to him and also to Mr. J. Oliver Williams, of New York, Dr. Samuel Crowell, of Boston, and many others who have assisted in the preparation of the book.

In arranging the following list of John Crowe's descendants, the names of heads of families are numbered in the order they occur in the series. The figures are convenient for reference, and as each person designated by a number has a separate article farther on, the reader will be enabled to trace out the genealogy of members of the family. It is not pretended that the list is accurate, or as full as it might be made, and it is hoped that any errors or omissions that may be detected will be brought to the attention of the publishers.

CROWELL FAMILIES OF YARMOUTH.

[Reprinted from "Yarmouth Register" of May 9, 1850, written by
AMOS OTIS, ESQ.]

THE name CROWELL was originally written CROWE. The surname of Samuel, who died in Boston in 1646, is written on the Suffolk Records CROWES. In 1669, in a grant of a house lot to Samuel of Yarmouth, his and Yelverton's surname is written CROELL. For the last century the uniform orthography has been Crowell, though in conversation it is often pronounced Crow.¹ It is an ancient name in Great Britain. In the Rolls preserved in the Tower of London of the year 1254 Gilbert Crowe, of Berkshire, is named.

The names of the English ancestors of John and Yelverton Crowe, of Yarmouth, we have not ascertained. They probably belonged to the branch of the family that removed from the county of Kent to Wales. If any one has preserved the ancient coat of arms of his family, he will be able to ascertain satisfactorily his English ancestry. We are indebted to a friend for the following extracts from British books:²

¹It is said that the ancestors of some of the Crowells in the Middle States were Cromwells; that coming to this country some time after the death of the Protector, and thinking the name would be unpopular, they agreed on the passage to drop the m when the ship in which they came over dropped her anchor on the American coast. This story is perhaps apochryphal.

“Crowe, of Llanherne, created July 8, 1627. — Extinct Lineage. I. Sir Sackville Crowe, of Llanherne, in the county of Caermarthen, son of William Crowe, Esq., of Socketts, in Kent, by Anne, his wife, daughter and co-heir of John Sackville, Esq., of Sussex, was created a Baronet in 1627. He married Mary, sister of John, eighth Earl of Rutland, daughter of Sir George Manners, of Haddon, by Grace, his wife, daughter of Sir Henry Pierrepont, knight, and dying in the Fleet Prison, London, in 1683, was succeeded by his son.

“II. Sir Sackville Crowe, of Llanherne, who married first, Anne, daughter of Sir William Rouse, baronet; and secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of William Herbert, Esq., of Llangattock, in Monmouthshire, and relict of Sir Henry Vaughn, of Derwhittenn, Caermarthenshire, but dying since [probably without issue] the Baronetcy became extinct. Arms, Gules, a chevron argent, between three cocks argent.” Extract from Burkes’ “Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies,” London, 1841.

“Peacham, an Englishman, in his Practice of Heraldry, tells us that the ancient family of the name of Crow in Suffolk carried for Arms, Gules, a Chevron between three cocks crowing, argent, as equivocally relative by their crowing, to the name of Crow.” See Nisbet’s Heraldry, Edinburgh, Vol. 1, 1722. [Peacham’s “Minerva Britannia” was published 1612. His “Compleat Gentleman,” 1622.]

“Crow, or Crowe [Brasted, Co. Kent], Gules, a Chevron, or, between three dunghill cocks argent, armed of the second, crest, a camel’s head argent, vulned in the neck gules.

“Crowe [Llanherne, Co. Caermarthen, as borne by Sir Sackville Crowe, of that place, created a Baronet in 1627, and allowed to Gyles Crow, of Brasted, Co. Kent, in 1589], Gules a chevron, argent, between three cocks argent, crest — a cock argent, combed, wattled, and membered argent.” Burke’s “Armory,” London, 1844.

Speaking of Anglo-Saxon names Lower says, "Mr. Kemble mentions two ladies of those times who bore the appellations of Crow and Duck [Craw and Enece]." Lower's "English Surnames," London, 1849.

A pedigree of the Crow family of Brasted, County of Kent, is in the Harlean manuscripts 1548, fo. 185, b. Peacham, who wrote early in the seventeenth century, speaks of the ancient family of Crowe in Suffolk, and Gyles Crowe was of Kent in 1586. The baronetcy in Wales also came from Kent, and the name is now common in England.

The Yelvertons were a family of great antiquity in the county of Norfolk. They were Earls of Sussex, Viscounts Longueville, and Baronets. The present Viscount Avonmore is a Yelverton. It is probable that a member of the family of Crowe married a Yelverton, and this is the origin of the name in Yarmouth.

We are aware that inquiries of this character are not interesting to the general reader. Our only object in referring to their English ancestry is to give additional evidence of the fact that a large portion of the first settlers in the Old Colony belonged to the most distinguished families in Great Britain.

In a republican community it is of little importance to a man whether his ancestor who died three centuries ago was of noble or ignoble blood, because he is mainly indebted to himself for the character he sustains in life, and he may say with the poet,

“Go, if your ancient but ignoble blood
Has crept through scoundrels ever since the flood;
Go, and pretend your family is young,
Nor own your fathers have been fools so long.”

The descriptions of the coats of arms above given render it probable that all of the name of Crowe are descendants of a common ancestor. It is no easy task to trace out all the descendants of the two of the name who settled in Yarmouth.¹ The town records were burnt in 1676, and the subsequent volumes are mutilated. On the town books scarce a record remains of the families of the "first comers," and the returns made to the Old Colony Court are few and imperfect. Deeds, grants of land, and the Probate records afford some assistance to the antiquarian, yet they do not supply the place of carefully kept registers of births. Entire accuracy is rarely attainable in genealogical inquiries. We have spent much time in preparing this article, yet it is not so full or so accurate as we could desire.

Mr. John Crowe came over to this country in 1635, and was admitted the same year an inhabitant of Charlestown.² His wife, Mrs. Elishua Crowe, it appears, came over before that date, as her name is entered as a member of the first church in Charlestown, 4th, 11th mo. 1634, and she bought a house of Mr. Wm. Jennings the same year. On the 16th of the 4th mo. 1638, Mr. Crowe sold lands in Charlestown and removed to the Old Colony. On the 18th of December, 1638, he took the oath of allegiance to the king and fidelity to the government of New Plymouth.

² Frothingham's History.

Another Mr. John Crowe was one of the first settlers of Hartford, Conn., as early as 1639. He married Elizabeth, only child of Elder William Goodwin, of Hartford. They had nine children. He subsequently removed to Hadley, where he died Jan. 16, 1685, aged about seventy-nine years.

William Crowe, of Plymouth, was born in 1629, and his will, dated Feb. 2, 1683-4, is on the Old Colony Records. He names his wife Hannah, three brothers, Samuel, Thomas, and Robert, and sister Mary, wife of John Herbert, all of Coventry, Eng., his uncle, John Atwood, of Plymouth, and cousin, Lydia Rider (wife of Samuel Rider, 3d, and daughter of Thomas Tilden, of Marshfield). He does not appear to have been related to the Crowell families of Yarmouth.

Jan. 6, 1638, O. S. (1639 new), the Old Colony Court granted the lands at "Mattacheset now called Yarmouth" to Mr. Anthony Thacher, Mr. Thomas Howes, Mr. John Crowe, and John Coit. The latter removed to Salem, Thacher, Howes, and Crowe came to Yarmouth in the autumn of 1638, and were appointed by the Old Colony Court the first land committee "to make an equal division of the uplands now to be divided at this first division there, to each man according to his estate and quality; according to their instructions."

Governor Bradford had previously bargained with the sagamore, Mashantumpaine, to sell the lands at Mattacheset to the whites; but the consideration had not been fully paid, and the lands to be reserved exclusively for the use of the Indians were not defined and bounded.

During the winter of 1638-9 the committee were employed in examining and surveying the lands and extinguishing the Indian titles. At the first the lands to be divided were laid out into furlongs, and afterwards subdivided into house lots and farm lots. The house lots were small and all laid out on the north side of the road. No one was allowed to obtain by purchase, or otherwise, two adjoining lots, and maintain only one house thereon. The object of this regulation was to induce the people to settle near each other, for common security against hostile attacks of the Indians, who were then very numerous within the bounds of Yarmouth.¹

The duties of the committee were arduous, and to perform them satisfactorily to all the inhabitants was impossible. The Indian fields or cleared uplands were not extensive, and to divide them according to their instruction necessarily created jealousies and dissatisfactions. The committee had to estimate each man's estate and his quality or the value of the service he had rendered or could probably render to the colony. The first could easily be done, but the latter never could be satisfactorily and was never afterwards attempted. The inhabitants complained to the court of the inequality of the division, and on the first of March, 1638, O. S. (1639 new), the court added to the committee Mr. Nicolas Simpkins, William Palmer, Philip Taber, and Joshua Barnes, townsmen of Yarmouth.¹

All the persons to whom the lands were at first granted did not settle on them in the winter of 1638, and to prevent "unworthy persons" from becoming inhabitants of the towns, "It was ordered April 1, 1639 by the court, that whereas the lands at Mattacheese, were granted to divers persons that long since should have inhabited upon them, the which they have not performed; — And whereas the court is informed that those persons to whom they were first granted are not likely to inhabit them in their own persons, and lest such as are there should receive in unto them unworthy persons, whereof the court hath lamentable experience by committing the disposal of lands in like case, — the court doth order that only such of them which at present are there shall remain and make use of some lands for their present necessity, but shall not divide any portion of lands there either to themselves or any others, nor receive unto them any other persons (than such as were nominated at first,) without special license and appointment from the government, that such inconveniences may be prevented which in like cases have formerly happened."

The complaint of the inhabitants of the town, the addition of four to the committee and the foregoing court order, restricting their powers, would seem to warrant a conclusion, not credible to the justice and impartiality of the first committee. But we must not judge hastily. The difficulty was not caused by the injustice of the committee, but because it was impracticable to execute satisfactorily to all the parties the "instructions of the court."

¹The power of the four added to the committee is not defined; their appointment was of temporary character, and though a majority, it does not appear that they had authority to control the actions of the committee.

On the Old Colony Records, under the date of March 3, 1639, O. S. (1640 new), is the following order: "Whereas Mr. Thacher, Mr. Crowe and Mr. Howes, the committee of Yarmouth were complained of, — to have made unequal divisions of lands there, whereupon the said committee have exhibited a very formal division of the said lands unto the court which is well approved of, and the court doth further order, — That the said committee shall receive no more inhabitants into the said town except they bring certificates from the places where they came under sufficient men's hands of the said places of their religious and honest carriage, which certificate shall be first allowed by the Governor and assistants before such person be admitted there."

Notwithstanding the approval of this court the difficulty was not ended. The inhabitants were yet dissatisfied, and at a court held in Yarmouth on the 17th of June, 1632, "before Edward Winslow, Miles Standish and Edmund Freeman, gentleman, three of the Assistants of the government." "It was ordered and concluded upon by the joint consent of all the inhabitants of Yarmouth that Capt. Standish shall be joined to the committees of said town of Yarmouth for the disposing of the lands there, and that not any lands hereafter be granted or laid forth without his consent, and that all lands hereafter to be laid forth shall be assigned to every person by lot except those which are already granted and assigned in particular, whereof sale and exchange have been made."

The assignment of the lands by lot was a more equitable mode, especially between persons having equal rights, than the former method by grants by the committees.

The principle on which the divisions were made in 1710 was that one-third of the lands should be divided on the estates, one-third on the tenements, and one-third to all the male inhabitants twenty-one years of age and upwards, who were born in Yarmouth before 1661, or whose ancestors had assisted in the settlement of the town.

The difficulties respecting the first grants still continued, and in March, 1648, Captain Standish was authorized by the court "to have the hearing, and put an end to all differences as do remain in the town of Yarmouth."

On the 13th of May, 1648, Captain Standish heard and decided a large number of cases. As a civilian he evinced the boldness and decision of the warrior. Many were ejected from lands claimed by them. All former grants of uplands and meadows, excepting ten acres of upland and four of meadow to Mr. Gray, in "Nobscusset or Sasuet neck," were abrogated and the property returned to the possession of the town. Mr. Thacher, Mr. Howes, and Mr. Crowe, in consideration of their charges about the discovering, purchase, and other charges by them disbursed, about the same, claimed and took up more land than the townsmen thought to be justly due for their services. Mr. Thacher had taken up one hundred and thirty acres of upland and twenty-six acres of meadow. He was allowed one hundred and ten acres of upland and his twenty-six acres of meadow. Mr. Howes had taken up one hundred acres of upland and twenty acres of meadow, and Mr. Crowe the same quantity. Each were allowed fourscore acres of upland and twenty acres of meadow. Thus was settled all "grievances about the laying out of lands from the beginning of the plantation to this 13th day of May, 1648."

Captain Standish having executed satisfactorily to all parties his commission "to put an end to all difference in the town of Yarmouth," on the 15th of May the following agreement was entered into to provide a remedy for any differences that might hereafter arise:

“It is agreed by Captain Standish, Mr. Crowe, Mr. Thacher, and Mr. Howes, the committees of this plantation of Yarmouth, and Richard Hore, Mr. Hawes, William Nicersone, William Palmer, and Robert Dennis, in the behalf of the towns, that Mr. Staire, William Nicharsone and Robert Dennis, shall be joined to the Committees for this present year, and thence after by the town, they have their liberty to choose other three to the committees aforesaid, so that the Committees shall not hereafter dispose of any lands either uplands or meadow without the consent of those three or two of them, and if any difference arise between them, which they cannot compose themselves, that they repair to Captain Standish for his direction.”

In 1640 Mr. John Crowe was admitted a freeman of the colony, selected and appointed a magistrate. His associates were Thomas Dimmock, of Barnstable, and Edmund Freeman, of Sandwich; he was a deputy to the Old Colony Court in 1641, 1642, and 1643. On a loose leaf of the Yarmouth Records is the following notice of his death: “The late Mas Crowell was buried the 7th of January, '72 ” O. S. His name is entered on the index to the births in Yarmouth, but the page to which reference is had is missing. Neither his will nor an account of the settlement of his estate is to be found on the Old Colony or Barnstable Probate records. The entry of his name on the index makes it probable that some of his children were born in Yarmouth. John, Thomas, and Moses were his sons, and Samuel probably. There was also a Judah Crow among the early inhabitants of Yarmouth; but I can find no evidence that he was son to Mr. John Crowe, or that he left any descendants.

CHANGE OF NAME TO "CROWELL."

[Reprinted from "The Yarmouth Register."]

ALL those Cape families who now bear the name of Crowell know that the first settlers called themselves Crow or Crowe. The exact date when the transfer occurred is a little indefinite.

Dixon on Surnames simply says that "the descendants of John Crow changed the name to Crowell."

The gravestone of John, grandson of John Crow, the grantee, is still well preserved in the North Dennis burying ground, and bears the name of Crowell, the date of death being Oct. 15, 1728. From facts like this our chroniclers of Cape Cod genealogy put the change at about the third generation. While this may be true of some branches of the family, others changed the name soon after landing, as the following interesting old will will clearly show:

"To all people to whome this presente shall come I Elverton Crowell alias Crow of Yarmouthe in ye Collony of Plymouth in New England sendste greeting etc: — Know yee that I ye sd Elverton Crowell alias Crow, having at this time through god's great goodness my perfect sense and memory Doe this twenty-third Day of December 1681 make and ordaine this my last will and testament as follows, viz; first I bequeate my soul to god that gave it me & my body to ye duste from whenne it was in Desent buriall and as for my outward

This will is amongst the oldest documents of similar character on file in the Registry of Deeds at Plymouth, and is interesting for its great age, as we reckon things in this country, its style and the important fact of the maker signing his old as well as his altered name — thereby showing the change of name from Crow to Crowell. It has sometimes been assumed without sufficient evidence that Yelverton Crow was a brother of John, one of the grantees of the town.¹
